

Drew Vollmer

Contact

drew.vollmer@duke.edu
drewvollmer.github.io

Education

2021 Ph.D. Economics, Duke University, (Expected)

Research Interests

- Industrial Organization
- Microeconomic Theory
- Applied Microeconomics

Research Projects

Resale, Refunds, and Demand Uncertainty: Evidence from College Football Ticket Sales
Job Market Paper

Why Bundle When Consumers Can Resell?
Working Paper

Stockpiling and Avoidance of U.S. Solar Panel Tariffs with Bryan Bollinger, Todd Gerarden, Kenneth Gillingham, and Daniel Xu
In Progress

Teaching Experience

2018 Instructor, Intermediate Microeconomics with Calculus, Duke University
Average instructor rating of 4.93/5.

2017 Teaching Assistant, Microeconomic Analysis II (PhD micro), Duke University
Rated as “excellent” (best) in 6/8 evaluations and “good” (second-best) in 2/8 evaluations.

2016 Teaching Assistant, Microeconomic Analysis I (PhD micro), Duke University
Rated as “excellent” (best) in 7/10 evaluations and “good” (second-best) in 3/10 evaluations.

Certificate in College Teaching, Duke University

Programming

R, MATLAB, Stata, UNIX/Linux, Python, Java, C++, SQL

References

Allan Collard-Wexler, Ph.D.

Professor of Economics
Department of Economics
Duke University

allan.collard.wexler@duke.edu

James Roberts, Ph.D.

Fred W. Shaffer Professor of Economics, Chair
Department of Economics
Duke University

j.roberts@duke.edu
(919) 660-1800

Curtis Taylor, Ph.D.

Professor of Economics
Department of Economics
Duke University

crtaylor@duke.edu
(919) 660-1827

Bryan Bollinger, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of Marketing
Department of Marketing
NYU Stern School of Business

bryan.bollinger@stern.nyu.edu